What Career are you in, and what sort of things does this entail?

My current job role is Information Security Analyst, this entails me having to look at all the ways that my company can get hacked and trying to protect our systems so that even if this does happen they cant get very far into our systems.

What inspired you to go into your chosen career?

The world that we live in today! Everything that we do results in us needing to store information on an electronic resource, so if I can have the knowledge to protect people so, that the information doesn't get into the wrong hands all the better!

What advice would you give to anyone interested in working in your career area?

Try and get some works experience in the field, if possible and prove yourself on some online portals. Try hack me is a good free training portal that can give some certificates!

What do you know now, that you wish you'd known when you were leaving Malbank?

Be prepared to take a risk! It can be scary at the time but it usually works out in the long run!
